Morning [illegible] Oregonian.

VOL. XXI.—NO. 6290 PORTLAND, OREGON: TUESDAY, JUNE 14, 1881. PRICE—TEN CENTS.

GENERAL NEWS.

BRADY BEFORE THE LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

No change in the Senatorial Fight—Disastrous Cyclone in Kansas—Another Chapter in the Mail Frauds, Etc., Etc., Etc.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

ALBANY, June 13.—Vote on senator [illegible] Platt 28, Crowley [illegible] Kernan [illegible] scattering.

The Bribery Investigation.

ALBANY, June 13.—[illegible] Bradley [illegible] voted first for Wheeler and [illegible] later for Conkling and Platt, had talked with Sessions, but had given him no reason for [illegible] many of his constituents were friendly to [illegible].

Cross-examined: Was an [illegible] dealer of Olean; had gotten [illegible] yards previously. He proceeded to [illegible] the history of his business career, prominent points of which were that he boarded at an inebriate asylum at Binghamton 8 months, had been engaged in several lawsuits about business, and that the Peg Leg Railroad Co. produced a paper signed by him giving right of way to the company, [illegible] he had told his partner he had not signed. Witness said that he was frequently at the rooms of Platt and Crowley during the canvass last January [illegible] senator, until he made up his mind which he would support; had talked frequently with Sessions who urged him to vote for Depew or Rogers; witness gave him a very strong answer, and Sessions knew he would not vote for Depew under any circumstances, or for any one but a stalwart; Sessions made no offer of money in January, and in the canvass he knew witness would support Conkling and Platt; subsequently witness gave him to understand that he was still a stalwart, and not vote for Conkling and Platt on first ballot because some of his constituents were opposed to them.

Beckham questioned who were at the many stalwart conferences at the Delavan house, saying that his object was to show a conspiracy. The stalwart counsel objected and the question was temporarily postponed.

Witness voted the first time for Sharpe and Cornell, but on Friday when their votes showed a falling off their friends spoke to witness and he changed to them; before final change witness had voted for [illegible] Woodward and Fenton; day after witness voted for Conkling witness went home and Sessions on his return advised him to vote for a half-breed; he was advised to support Depew last Wednesday evening at the Delavan house; witness always refused.

Sessions argued that witness' constituency would be satisfied with Depew, and said that Rodgers or Cornell could be elected but Depew probably not. Witness replied that he would not leave Conkling and Platt.

Probabilities.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The Post's Albany special indications point to a large increase of Depew's vote to-morrow, with condensation of some scattering votes on Cornell for the short term. Possibly Cornell will then be a candidate for the long term. An effort was made in joint convention to-day to break up pairing, which has gone to an extreme. Some remedy will probably be adopted.

Civil Service Reform.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The directors of the Maritime association have adopted a resolution respectfully urging upon President Garfield, Secretary Windom and Collector Robertson, that the principle of civil service reform be especially observed in the custom house, and efficient employes be retained and ability and experience be the sole test governing new appointments.

The Brewers' Strike.

Sixteen hundred striking brewers [illegible] this morning. Beer is coming from outside cities. The strikers say that all this beer is manufactured by union men.

Chicago Policeman Killed.

CHICAGO, June 13.—At [illegible] last night, [illegible] Timothy Mahoney, one of the [illegible] while attempting to arrest two drunken [illegible] shot three times and [illegible] The burglars then escaped.

Lost at Sea.

[illegible] HAVEN, Mass., June 13.—The schooner Edward Lee [illegible] lost a boat's crew. Mate reports that May 14th in lat. 37.42, [illegible] sighted a sperm whale [illegible] The captain lowered a boat at 2 P. M. to chase a school. It went a long distance and could be seen occasionally from the mast head between swells. At [illegible] was seen from aloft with a glass some 10 or 12 miles from the ship. The vessel was run in the direction where the boat was last seen until 11 P. M., and then hove to. At daylight search was renewed and kept up for four days without seeing any sign of the boat or crew, when it was determined to bring the vessel home. The names of the men in the missing boat were as follows: Capt. C. A. Sparks of Provincetown, John Baker, second mate and boat steerer, Charles Leslie, Manuel Govia, Peter George and Manuel Fogo, seamen. The boat was supplied with a compass and lantern. The sea was smooth while the schooner remained in the vicinity.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Postal Statistics.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—It is estimated that the postal revenues of the year ending July 1st will be [illegible], congressional appropriation $40,[illegible]. Reductions in expenditures of star service since the 4th of March are almost exactly $1,[illegible] per annum. This includes $200,000 cut off during the past week.

The Utah Seat.

Clerk Adams has consulted high legal authority which [illegible] advises him of the right of Cannon to a seat in the house.

The Custodian Investigation.

Windom returns to-night and the facts brought out in the investigation of the treasury custodian [illegible] will be submitted at the cabinet meeting to-morrow. It is believed that action will be taken at once for removal of some and suspension of others known to be connected with the ring.

A Chance for Developments.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—A suit instituted here [illegible] agents of the old real estate pool is the outgrowth of a quarrel between some organs of the [illegible] and its agents over profits. The pool was organized in the first place by a number of men with the idea of buying large tracts of real estate and holding it for increase in value that it was believed would result from great improvements then being inaugurated by Alex. Shepherd. Senator Stewart and other wealthy men formed a pool and in looking for agents, Hallett Kilbourne, who was very intimate with Shepherd, was chosen, because it was supposed that Kilbourne would be able to ascertain in advance what improvements Shepherd intended to make, and what parts of the city would be benefited. Kilbourne was a trusted and confidential friend of Shepherd and in fact did find out where to buy real estate so as to make money. Now some of the parties who were members of the pool or syndicate claim that Kilbourne and his associate partner made more money than their proper share, and want them to disgorge. Quite probably if the suit is pressed it will bring to light some secrets of the real estate pool not yet disclosed.

The Five Per Cents.

Of $[illegible] five per cent. bonds outstanding May [illegible] when the [illegible] call was issued, about $[illegible] have been received [illegible] present. Exclusive of Sundays, there remain but 17 days before the limit for extension, July 1st, be reached. Bonds [illegible] could be promptly handled. It is believed that all will be received [illegible] before the 1st prox.

Encroachments on the Southern Ute Reservation.

WASHINGTON, June [illegible].—The commissioner of Indian affairs to-day received a telegram from the southern Ute agency to the effect that one station of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad has been established on the reservation and that a store, saloon and a dance house are being located there. He says that it is the [illegible] the Indian [illegible] to enforce United States laws, and that military force will be required. The commissioner sent a telegram to Secretary Kirkwood, with a recommendation that the war department will be requested to issue orders that the commanding officers of troops stationed near the agency to place himself in communication with Agent Page, and immediately remove from the reservation all intruders together with their property and effects.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

Irish Affairs before the Commons.

LONDON, June 13.—In the commons [illegible] England's relations were [illegible] the powers and the [illegible] to support [illegible] A large proportion of [illegible] proceedings have been taken because [illegible] unable to pay their rent. [illegible] excitement there.

Affairs in County Cork.

DUBLIN, June 13.—A priest obtained the magistrate's consent for a procession at Mill street. The bishop of Ross communicated the following to the press: The riots of Skibbereen have been much exaggerated by the English and Irish newspapers. It would be unfair to charge the land league with responsibility for disturbances of or with continuance of evictions. There can be no peace in any part of the district. A quantity of gunpowder in an earthen jar with fuse attached, has been exploded at the house of Wright, collector of Clonakilty. Damage trifling. Wright recently participated in execution sales on behalf of landlords.

Irish Items.

DUBLIN, June 13.—A man named Mahoney, formerly [illegible] has been arrested under [illegible] at Mills, Cork, on [illegible].

Secretary [illegible] of the [illegible] land league, has been arrested under [illegible].

Another Earthquake.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 13.—A telegram states that a hundred persons were killed and [illegible] injured by an earthquake which recently devastated a number of villages in the pashalic of Van, Armenia.

A Farce.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 13.—An indictment against the alleged murderer of the sultan, Abdul Aziz, has been drawn up.

Affairs at Tripoli.

PARIS, June 13.—A semi-official letter from Tunis has been communicated to a Paris newspaper, announcing the arrival at Tripoli of a Turkish pasha with 1000 troops. The letter says: Doubtless the porte has the right to maintain troops in Tripoli, but not to excite fanaticism under the pretense of defensive measures. We are now responsible for order in Tunis. We respect the rights of the porte, but good feeling has been reciprocated.

Algeria.

ORAN, June 13.—An official dispatch received here states that General [illegible] has defeated a body of insurgents, killing 50. The French had 2 wounded.

A Sensational Proclamation.

BERLIN, June 13.—Another nihilist proclamation has been issued from the office of the nihilist journal, Will of the People, entitled "trial and torture," and declaring that the assassins of the late czar were tortured before execution, Rousakoff having informed the crowd to that effect while on his way to the scaffold.

A Rumor.

BERLIN, June 13.—It is reported that America and France will form a temperance [illegible].

THE ONDERDONK CONTRACT.

How the Work is Done—A Chapter on the Methods of Chinese Labor As Reported in Canada.

OTTAWA, June 13.—Intelligence is just received from British Columbia that Mr. Onderdonk of San Francisco is pushing forward his contract on the Canada-Pacific railway with great energy. His contract is for 127 miles of very difficult country. There are three tunnels to be made, and the work is tedious. One tunnel is sixteen hundred feet long. There are some three thousand men all told who are employed on the Onderdonk works, of which [illegible] approximately are Chinese. There is among the people of British Columbia intense and increasing aversion to the employment of Chinamen, but the contractors appear to find it profitable to employ them. They are fairly good laborers, and are reckoned valuable in the proportion of three to two white men or thereabouts. All men work on the ten hour system. Chinamen are paid [illegible] per day. White men receive $2 to $2.50, and [illegible] [illegible] They are employed by an arrangement between contractors and agents of the great Chinese companies, which agree to supply a given number of men. The contractor has nothing to do with the Chinamen individually. [illegible]

[illegible]

A HARD WINTER.

What a Minnesota Man found out by a visit to the Pacific Northwest.

ST. PAUL, June 13.—Nathan P. Langford, [illegible] bank examiner, has just arrived home from [illegible] trip through Colorado, New Mexico, California, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Oregon, Washington territory and Montana. He brings some interesting information about cattle and ranchmen. He says that the principal cattle men in Washington territory along the Columbia river report that 50 per cent of the cattle died during the winter. In Montana the loss has been comparatively light. There were last fall a good many herds driven over into Montana from Oregon and Washington territory, and of course, after making the long journey they were not as full fleshed as those that had been in Montana. The winter was severe on those unacclimated herds, and the loss was about 15 per cent. The loss in acclimated herds (those that had been in Montana two or three winters) was only about 3 per cent. The total loss of cattle in Montana has not been one-third of what cattle men apprehended it would be on the first of last February. Mr. Langford talked with numbers of cattle men, each of whom told of the number they had lost in specific herds, and said that the average of their losses would be the average loss throughout the territory. He says that the fact that stock withstood the rigors of the hardest winter that has been known in Montana since it was organized a territory in 1864, shows that it is bound to become the great cattle growing region of the country. Sheep losses have been about one-third on account of deep snow.

CYCLONE IN KANSAS.

Several Persons Killed and Wounded, and Much Damage Done to Property.

WINFIELD, Kansas, June 13.—A cyclone visited Sumner and Sedgwick counties Sunday night, causing destruction of a vast amount of property, killing a few and wounding many persons. It was first seen near Ninnescah, on the Arkansas river, three miles from Mulvane Junction, and traveled rapidly in a northeasterly direction, striking in a cornfield near Mulvane. It passed to the north of Mulvane, and picking up a two-story frame house, turned it over twice and smashed it to smithereens. A lady and her child were seriously injured internally, as well as bruised, and the chances are that she will die. The residence of a man named Eagan was demolished. This was done by one branch of the cyclone. Another did much damage at Belle Plain. The two united near Mulvane, and it was the two combined that did the work. During the storm large hail stones fell in enormous quantities, and a hot wind prevailed, making it difficult to breathe, and turning the leaves of corn black as dirt. After leaving Mulvane the cyclone wheeled off in a southerly direction and struck Floral, a small town about four miles from Sedgwick. One person was killed there and two or more less dangerously wounded. Crops are much injured.

Hurricane in Minnesota.

WELLS, June 13.—A hurricane struck in this section yesterday. An old couple named Charles, were killed, several houses wrecked and several persons severely hurt.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 13.—The president has granted a concession to the Pride and Pool [illegible] railroad from Piedras Negras to [illegible].

Columbia River Freshets.

The last number of the Science Monthly contains a letter from Prof. W. D. Lyman of Forest Grove [illegible] the annual freshets in the Columbia river. The writer says:

"An article entitled 'The Rivers' in the number of Scribner's for August, [illegible] to the Columbia which greatly needs [illegible]. It mentions as remarkable that the Columbia river often rises fifteen feet during the summer [illegible]. This presents so inadequate an idea of [illegible] river that I am compelled to call your attention to the fact that during the flood [illegible] the Columbia rose at The Dalles, [illegible] feet above [illegible] at Portland twelve [illegible] the junction of the Willamette and Columbia, the river was backed up to a height of twenty-eight feet above low water mark. At Vancouver, where the ordinary width of the Columbia is a mile and a half, the flood extended to a width of six miles. To give some idea of the [illegible] of waters coming from the slopes of our great western mountains, I might add that at The Dalles the mass of water superimposed on the low stage of the river was fifty-three feet [illegible] three feet per hour [illegible] at the rate of nine [illegible] per hour. For several days it rose at the rate of an inch an hour. Its hourly increase was therefore enough to make a large creek, while its daily increase was just about equivalent to such a river as the Hudson. The Columbia has, of course, no need to feel jealous of any of the brotherhood of rivers, but it would like its eastern friends to know what it really can do in the matter of a freshet."

From Rev. N. Doane we have a brief sketch of the life of the late Gen. Joel Palmer. It is, however, the same in substance as that heretofore published.

The Farmers vs. Portland.

(From the Evening Telegram.)

That there is a strong prejudice against Portland among the people of the Willamette valley is an indisputable fact, and while as against the whole city or all the people of Portland, this prejudice is groundless, there is some cause for it. The money which controls the business of the state is centered here, and Portland business men handle the lever which regulates the markets and commercial transactions throughout Oregon. That men having such power will generally use it to their own advantage and profit, is as natural as human nature itself. A few years ago a few men here chartered a number of vessels to arrive, and fortunately for them freights took an upward turn, and they netted a snug sum on the venture. Thereupon other firms, with ample capital, turned their attention to this branch of the business and left the shipping trade to others. Last year it is said a few firms here chartered nearly every vessel which has come to this port, prior to arrival, and at figures ranging from 50s to £3 5s per ton, while nearly all re-charters have been at 85s to 90s, thus leaving a clear profit to the original charterers of 15s to 30s per ton, or $500 to $7000 on each vessel, according to capacity. This profit has come out of the wheat growers, and though had they chartered these vessels in the first place, they would not have been likely to divide their large profits with the merchants, but would very certainly have pocketed them themselves, they are not backward in denouncing the Portland merchants as grinding monopolists. It is no more than cause and effect for the farmers to complain and for the merchants to repeat the venture in the future, but as long as this continues so long will the prejudice against Portland continue. This control of the freight market is a business move of comparatively recent origin. It will probably be very greatly extended. Others will enter it and competition will tend to check the evils which have grown out of the system. This is the only way in which the matter can be remedied, for as long as a few parties do all the chartering business they will of course put on every cent which the market will bear in their re-charters, but it is creating and strengthening the feeling against Portland, which is detrimental to the city. Within a day or two a prominent Portland wheat merchant, from one of the interior towns, informed the writer that many farmers were so bitter in their feelings against Portland that they declare themselves ready to give one half their trade if they can be relieved from the oppression which Portland merchants put upon them. This may be an exaggeration of the actual situation, but that a deep-seated antagonism has been engendered by the method by which the foreign market has been controlled, there is no room to doubt.

Death of Alfred B. Street.

Alfred B. Street, the poet, died at Albany June 2, aged seventy years. Alfred Billings Street was born at Poughkeepsie Dec. 18, 1811. He studied law and practiced a few years in Monticello, and subsequently removed to Albany, where for some years he was state librarian. He began his literary career as a poetical contributor to the magazines. His first published volume was "The Burning of Schenectady," and other poems in 1842. His largest publication was "Frontenac, a Tale of the Iroquois." In addition to poems he has published several prose works, the most valuable being "A History of the Council of New York from 1777 to 1822."

EUCALYPTUS.

Eucalyptus has of late years been found very useful for a great number of the ills that flesh is heir to. Its latest application is in the shape of Slavin's California Pine and Eucalyptus Porous Plaster, an article which is possessed of much merit, and is fast superseding the old pitch and frankincense plaster. It is endorsed by the medical profession throughout the land. For sale by Woodard, Clarke & Co. Portland, Oregon.

THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Address by Rev. Horace Lyman, the First Pastor, on "Laying the Foundations"—Address by Rev. G. H. Atkinson, D. D., the Third Pastor, on "Rearing the Structure."

[illegible]

Rearing the Structure.

Of this I am requested to speak, covering the time of Mr. [illegible] from [illegible] May [illegible] to May 1881, [illegible] years.

[illegible]

Thus it was that at the early communions of 1851 and 1852 we had the joy to receive many into the church who have continued faithful to this day.

The revivals of 1857 and 1874, came with more public union effort, and with those continued in our own church meetings and labors. The strength and vigor of union meetings have always been in marked proportion to the faithfulness of the church in the use of its own means of grace.

The Profits of the Revision.

(New York Herald.)

The question has been raised again and again, Where do the profits of sales of the revised New Testament go? [illegible] expenses, which by the English committee [illegible] paid [illegible] for work [illegible] The American committee, however, don't receive and will not get one cent. Their expenses, not for labor, but for travel, correspondence, stationery, etc., have been paid by private subscriptions up to this time. The profits must be very great if the English publishers have already sold, as reported, [illegible] copies. [illegible] The cheaper styles are sold cheaper in the United States than they are in England, Canada and the colonies, because of the lack of international copyright here. For example, the very popular twenty cent edition sold here in New York is sold in London and [illegible] for twenty-five or thirty cents, and the higher priced copies are proportionally increased.

The Daily Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 14, 1881.

NEW YORK AND THE GRAIN MOVEMENT.

The latest report of the New York Produce Exchange gives statistics of the grain trade of New York and other large ports of the country which are not regarded as very encouraging for the future trade of the American metropolis. The shipments from New York during 1880 were still as large as those of Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore combined, but taking the figures of five years previous it appears that whereas the trade of Boston has doubled during this period and that of Philadelphia and Baltimore nearly trebled, that of New York has increased but a little more than 80 per cent. This, although not as bad a showing as one familiar with the drawbacks to commerce here might be led to expect, is yet full of warning. At their present rate of progress Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore will equal New York in the matter of grain exports in less than another decade, unless something is done to make New York more attractive as a shipping point. The report says: "The trade and commerce of New York have been and are increasing, and, taking these as a whole, their aggregate in value is about as large as that of all the other ports of the country taken together. Even in the grain trade there has been a very large gain, but far less than at competing Atlantic ports. Comparing the receipts of grain at New York in 1860 with those of 1880, the increase is 315 9-10 per cent. Comparing the receipts of the six ports competing with New York and with each other in 1860 with those in 1880, the increase is 1288 per cent." The New York Produce Exchange is disposed to look upon the system of barge transportation down the Mississippi as a more formidable diversion of the grain trade than Chicago regards it; for the report says: "With facilities multiplied it is claimed that there can be moved from the towns on the upper Mississippi anywhere from 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 bushels per week at a cost, taking the river and ocean freight from New Orleans to Liverpool, several cents per bushel less than the charges for the same service through the direct routes eastward via North Atlantic ports." Speaking of the Welland canal, it says: "If this route can do what is claimed it can, the business remaining of the grain trade for the railways, the New York canal and the seaboard cities will be limited to the domestic requirements for consumption. The export trade for seven months of the year, in this contingency, will mostly be monopolized by Montreal and New Orleans." To meet this competition and retain the export grain movement through New York, the report regards it as a positive necessity that the Erie canal be so improved as to diminish the cost of transportation through it fully one dollar per ton, or more. It is evident that now for the first time since the era of extensive grain movement by rail began, the Mississippi water way is affording actual competition with railway rates to the whole upper Mississippi valley. From all points on the upper Mississippi and its navigable tributaries grain is now carried to Liverpool for less than $10 a ton, all costs (insurance excepted) included.

JUSTICE FOR IRELAND.

Most of the land of Ireland has two possessors,—those who hold the title and those who occupy the soil. The British parliament is now called upon to decide the nature of their joint ownership. That such a question should arise in this stage of European development, is a remarkable fact. In every other European country, these results of medieval conquest have been permanently adjusted. Not the least of the unpleasant feature of England's dilemma, is the necessity of settling, by methods of the nineteenth century, questions which belong properly to the sixteenth and seventeenth. Had the conquest of Ireland been complete the law of might would have passed centuries ago into the law of right, and at this day its results would no longer be challenged. But English intrusion in Ireland has never so completely subjugated the country as to change the whole order of things and give time a chance to blot out of the memory of the change; and therefore it remains to this day as a spear point embedded in a living body, inflaming everything around it. And now, in the nineteenth century, the law of justice has become so well developed and established among mankind that the English conscience itself, hitherto largely indifferent to Ireland's wrongs, is now awakened to them and insisting on efforts to redress them. But great wrongs like these can never be fully redressed by easy and peaceful methods. They are planted in violence, and only by violent methods can they be uprooted. It is doubtful whether the methods of the nineteenth century can meet a case of this kind,—unless we regard revolutionary violence as a method not of an age, but for all time. No act of parliament can provide any adequate redress for Ireland. Her wrongs lie so deep that only the avenging hand of revolutionary justice could reach them; and as this is not practicable, Ireland is doomed yet to wait, till somehow her opportunity shall be brought about through the large reach and sweep of the operations of eternal justice.

RAPID AMERICANIZATION.

A German paper published in New Orleans contains an article from a correspondent in Texas, written in a strain of lamentation over the rapid Americanization of the younger generations born of Teutonic parentage in that state. He says they are entirely forgetting their German origin, and with it all the hardy German virtues. They are constantly becoming more American in their customs, amusements, manners, and ideas, and he hails the prospect of a direct line of steamers between Galveston and Hamburg with pleasure, as furnishing the possibility of a corrective of the tendency toward Americanization, by the speedy and liberal infusion of new German blood.

It is evident, however, that this would be hopeless, since there are no people who show an equal adaptability with the descendants of German immigrants to assimilate with the masses of our native population. But some of this lamenting philosopher's strictures are not without point, as where he deplores that the German love of song and of hardy gymnastic and athletic exercises cannot be bred into the younger folks. The singing societies of Texas are composed almost entirely of the older Germans, and the songs of the fatherland must look to them alone for an occasional airing. In the Turners' Unions things are no better. They are Turners' Unions only in name, and in place of athletic exercises, balls, picnics, dances and other effeminate amusements flourish. The German language is wholly neglected. None of the younger people cultivate it, and even many of the older ones have taken to English in preference.

To all this the New York Sun adds the just observation that "it is perhaps not unnatural that some of the older generation of Germans should be troubled about such things; yet it is both natural and desirable that their children should not remain German, but should as they are unquestionably doing, become thoroughly Americanized, even if in the course of that process they lose some undeniable German virtues."

The proverb is something musty; nevertheless as the gods are supposed to continue to this day the device of first making mad those whom they would destroy, it may not be amiss to recall the saying anent that act of Roscoe Conkling's the other day in sending a public telegram of sympathy to Senator Mahone of Virginia, assuring him of the good wishes of the republicans of the north, in his campaign of repudiation and state-dishonor. Privately, of course he might wire to Mahone, with whom he and Don Cameron made a bargain, that they could not carry out, as much condolence and sympathy as he pleased. But to do it ostentatiously, to virtually publish the fact that he had sent such a telegram seems but a way of assuring the political damnation he is apt to get anyway. New York, the great commercial state, containing the commercial metropolis of the union, is the very place where the dishonor of the Mahone attempt to cheat the creditors of the state of Virginia is most keenly appreciated to say nothing of the fact that it is the state in which more than any other the bonds, sought to be repudiated, are held. The Conkling telegram, therefore, veiled as its meaning was under specious phrases about "the advancement of old Virginia," and the "cause of equal rights" really means this: That Conkling thinks that the republican masses of the north would be gratified to see the republicans of the south gain a local and temporary advantage by an alliance with any set of political scalawags that are willing to unite with them for the hope of common plunder. This is about as far from political morality as Conkling's course in general is from political common sense.

It is asserted by the Chicago Tribune that certain capitalists and parties in the grain trade in that city "have investigated the present situation in wheat," and have reached the conclusion, first, that the winter wheat crop of the whole United States will not aggregate more than two-thirds the yield of last year; second, that the acreage now sown to spring wheat is 25 per cent. less than in 1880, and that the yield per acre promises not to be greater this year than last; and third, that only a comparatively small amount of wheat now remains in the hands of millers and in the elevators at principal points. To these conclusions the Tribune adds its own comment, thus: "We have enough wheat on hand to supply our own needs up to next harvest, and that harvest will supply all the wheat wanted for bread and seed in the United States during the next crop-year. But nothing more. Not a bushel for export." Of course the Pacific slope is not included in this calculation. It is very probable, however, that the calculation is erroneous. True, no one knows what may happen between now and the time when the harvests will be gathered; but if crop reports from all sections of the country are as reliable as in former years, there will be no great decline in the aggregate of the wheat crop as compared with 1880. Capitalists may have a motive in creating the impression that we are to have a short crop.

An old citizen of Portland, who has always taken an intelligent interest in the affairs of the city, called on THE OREGONIAN yesterday to say that for twenty years past no nominations have been made by any party for members of the common council so good in all respects as those made by the citizens' committee on Saturday last. Each and every one of these nominations is excellent in itself; and taken together they constitute a body of men who will do honor to the city while they give proper direction to its business.

Portland wants a non partisan police force. It has such a force now. But if the partisan movement shall succeed this non-partisan police will be transformed into a partisan machine and used in ring interests to control future elections. The object of this partisan effort is personal and ring politics. The well-known character of those who are leading it shows plainly what its object is and how that object will be carried out if they get power.

Discussing tariffs, protection, reciprocity and retaliation, the New York World says: "We prosper in spite of protection through the unparalleled munificence of nature. Protection is like a vast military system that gives offense abroad and crushes the people at home, and retaliation is a counter-armament, involving burdens out of all proportion to whatever of empty revenge may be obtained by it."

"OREGONIAN reader at Champoeg:" The highest military rank ever conferred on U. S. Grant was that of general—a grade created by act of congress during the administration of Andrew Johnson. It is the same now held by General Sherman.

The Daily Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 14, 1881.

CITY.

[illegible] MISUNDERSTANDING.—About [illegible] o'clock yesterday morning the mate of the German ship Argo was returning to the vessel, and stopped for a moment near a gate leading to the [illegible] of [illegible] store. Officer J. W. Sloan saw him, and as an attempt had been made a few days before to rob [illegible] safe, the officer was naturally suspicious. He called to the sailor to halt until he could examine the doors, but the seaman not understanding English and supposing Sloan to be a highwayman, started to run down Salmon street towards his ship. This convinced the policeman that the mate was not engaged in lawful business, and he pursued. The tar, now convinced that an attempt was being made to rob him, increased his speed, Sloan following and crying "Halt." The man didn't halt, so Sloan fired his revolver in the air. By this time the mate had reached the [illegible], stumbled and cut his nose, which bled profusely. The sailors, hearing the report of the pistol, rushed ashore half dressed, and seeing their [illegible] bleeding supposed he had been shot. [illegible] a minute afterwards when the sailors pounced on him, giving him a severe thumping. [illegible] and with the assistance of Officers Hickey and Watson, arrested the whole crew and took them to police headquarters. After half an hour's explanation, carried on through interpreters, the sailors were allowed to go in peace. All of which goes to show that when a man travels in the United States he wants to be able to understand English.

PULLMAN SLEEPERS ARRIVED.—Yesterday two Pullman palace sleeping cars, the "Wallula" and the "Oregon," arrived here on the deck of the bark [illegible] Tam O'Shanter, which is moored at Allen & Lewis' dock. To-day they will be transferred to a barge lying alongside [illegible] started to The Dalles. These are the first Pullman cars ever placed on a route west of the Sierra Nevada mountains. Mr. Pullman is a large stockholder in the O. R. & N. Co., and had encouragement to build the finest cars the company's works could turn out. They have ten double seats and a drawing room, and are finished in white mahogany filled and [illegible] but not varnished. Panels of the upper berths are inlaid with oriental woods, and are further ornamented with carving. The interior, as a whole, does not present as rich an appearance as the cars finished in walnut and gold, but are much more cheerful. About [illegible] o'clock this afternoon the cars will be ready for inspection. Mr. H. F. Shields, of Chicago, who arrived here recently will have charge of the Pullman Co's business, with headquarters for the present at The Dalles. Two more sleepers, the "Umatilla" and "Walla Walla," will arrive in a few days.

AT THE STATE FAIR.—There are now at the State Fair grounds and soon to be en route there the following horses to compete for the prizes offered by the society: Katie B., Tillie W., and Joe Hooker, owned by Capt. Flavel, Winters, from Prineville, Lish Barnes, owner; Trade Dollar, from Walla Walla, Isaac, owner; Tillie C. and Jack Savage, owned in San Francisco, brought up by Ab. Slemley, trainer, Frank Hastings, Ole, Mandy Murray, Lindsay and Mrs. Garfield, owned by Joe Taylor; Heenan, owned by Chauncey Dale. These horses will soon be in training on the ground.

OREGON STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY.—This society which convenes to-day in this city, will hold an evening session in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., to which the public is invited. The annual address by the president, Dr. Baily of Hillsboro, will be given, and other prominent speakers will participate in the exercises. A number of musical selections will be rendered during the evening, including a vocal solo by Mrs. Goodsell.

AT REST.—The remains of the late Herbert N. Northrup arrived by the steamer Sunday night and yesterday afternoon were placed under the sod in Lone Fir cemetery. The funeral ceremonies at the residence of Mr. E. J. Northrup were conducted by Rev. J. H. Acton and Rev. George W. Izer, and were largely attended. The interment was private, only the family attending. The floral tributes were very numerous and rich.

BURGLARIZED.—The residence of C. M. Reid, in Tibbetts' addition, East Portland, was entered by a burglar during the absence of the family. The thief took a silver dollar and a 50 cent piece from a purse, but for some unaccountable reason, failed to take a $10 gold piece which was also in the purse. So far as known no other articles of value were purloined.

LEG BROKEN.—Sunday evening Joseph Knott, son of Levi Knott, was riding near the L street ferry landing, when his horse slipped and fell in such a manner as to catch the young man's left leg. Both bones were fractured about four inches above the ankle. The injuries were dressed by Dr. Rafferty.

THE WATER.—During the past 24 hours, the Columbia river has risen very little. Last evening the line went down, and the weather and water report could not be obtained. The Willamette had risen about [illegible] inches during the 24 hours preceding 8 o'clock last evening.

Y. P. A.—Regular meeting of the Young People's Association this evening at 7.45 o'clock in the Baptist church vestry. Mr. A. E. Turner will lead the meeting. Every member of the society is requested to be present. Also strangers are invited and made welcome.

[illegible] SYNOD.—An arrangement has been made that persons traveling over the O. & C. R. R. (east and west side divisions), to attend the session of the synod in McMinnville, and paying full fare one way, will be returned free on certificate of the stated clerk of the synod.

POMONA GRANGE.—The Marion county Pomona grange will meet in the grange hall in this city, at 11 o'clock A. M. on Thursday, the 23d inst. instead of the 30th, the day for the regular meeting. Attendance of members desired and all fourth degree members cordially invited.

JOURNALISTIC CHANGES.—Messrs. H. M. Clifton and W. A. McPherson, both experienced and able men, have charge of the local department of the Evening Telegram. Mr. Jerry Caldwell to-day assumes the local editorship of the Standard.

FUNERAL.—The funeral of the late Wm. H. Conley, who died in Santa Clara, California, on the 2d of June, will take place to-day at 2 o'clock, from the residence of the family on the corner of M and Fifth streets, East Portland.

WILL PARTICIPATE.—Grand Marshal Al Zieber has been notified by the members of the Grand Army of the Republic that they will take part in the parade on the 4th. They will be assigned position in the procession.

QUARTERLY MEETING.—The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the vestry of the church.

SERIOUSLY ILL.—Capt. John Smith, Indian agent of the Warm Spring reservation, is at present lying quite ill at the residence of his son-in-law, Dr. C. H. Raffety, in East Portland.

IN JAIL.—A. T. Nicholls, who was arrested last Saturday, charged with attempting to defraud his creditors, is still in jail. The case will probably be examined in a few days.

MEETING.—The guild of St. Stephen's chapel will meet this (Tuesday) afternoon at three o'clock, in the room adjoining the chapel. A full attendance is desired.

P. C. AND F. B. CLUB.—The usual monthly meeting of the Portland Cricket and Foot Ball Club will be held this evening in the St. Andrew's Society rooms.

LOREN B. HASTINGS.

PORTLAND, June 13, 1881.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your Port Townsend telegrams of the 11th inst. is an announcement of the death of Loren B. Hastings, a prominent resident of that vicinity since 1853. Mr. H. was formerly a resident of this city. In the spring of 1850 in company with Dr. D. S. Baker, now of Walla Walla, he opened the Portland House, on the southwest corner of First and Salmon streets, afterward occupied for a time as the Advocate office and burned August 2, 1873. In 1851 he was a member of the first city council of Portland, and was much respected by all who knew him during his residence here.

SEEKING SINNERS.

Inauguration of a Series of Revival Meetings under the Leadership of Mr. Hallenbeck, the Evangelist.

Last night at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, and under the auspices of the members thereof, a series of meetings similar to those held throughout the country by Moody and Sankey, was commenced. A large crowd of people were present, and on a numerical standpoint, the meeting can be said to have been auspiciously inaugurated. Mr. M. L. Hallenbeck, a young man who about five years ago was converted during one of Moody and Sankey's revivals at Chicago, who arrived in this city from San Francisco on Sunday last, was present and assumed the leadership of the meeting. The gentleman is a young man of prepossessing appearance, and one who would hardly be taken for an evangelist. The meeting was commenced by the singing of a number of gospel hymns by the congregation, after which [illegible] prayer was given by Rev. Dr. Lindsley of the First Presbyterian church of this city. Mr. Hallenbeck then gave a pleasing incident of ante-bellum times, telling of [illegible] of a slave girl who was being disposed of at auction, and set at liberty by her kindhearted purchaser, who, a resident of the north, was traveling throughout the south. The story as told by the gentleman was a forcible illustration of the redemption of the world by the Savior, which was the object of its narration, and after which the congregation, at the request of the speaker, joined in singing the hymn commencing:

"I will sing of my Redeemer
And his wondrous love to me."

Following the conclusion of the hymn, Mr. Hallenbeck read the 103d psalm, and afterwards applied himself to his task in a fervent manner, his subject being intemperance. But while he spoke in general terms upon a subject that has been worn threadbare, his manner of dealing with it was entirely new, and withal a pleasant one. The great evils of the curse of intemperance being shown in a forcibly vivid manner, illustrated by actual life scenes, told by Mr. Hallenbeck in a manner that brought from more than one breast suffused sobs and caused a lively display of handkerchiefs. Mr. Hallenbeck is a pleasant as well as an effective speaker, and no one who listens to him but will think that in entering upon his great mission, he has done so earnestly and honestly. After the close of the remarks of the gentleman, a season of silent prayer was indulged in, after which Rev. J. A. Gray of the Baptist church, pronounced the benediction. [illegible] of the series of meetings will be held at the Taylor Street M. E. church. Mr. Hallenbeck will speak upon the subject of "How to get at the Drinking Men." A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend.

MASONIC.

Yesterday forenoon the grand lodge of Masons for Oregon commenced its regular session at Masonic temple. The following is the list of officers, nearly all of whom were present:

R. P. Earhart, grand master.
W. T. Wright, deputy grand master.
Thomas G. Reames, grand senior warden.
J. N. Dolph, grand junior warden.
H. Abrahams, grand treasurer.
I. W. Pratt, grand secretary.
J. R. N. Bell, grand chaplain.
M. C. George, grand orator.
Wallace Baldwin, acting grand senior deacon.
D. P. Mason, grand junior deacon.
H. E. Harris, acting grand standard-bearer.
H. V. V. Johnson, acting grand sword-bearer.
J. B. Lee, grand marshal.
Willis Dunnigan, acting grand steward.
A. J. Woodworth, grand tyler.
L. W. Wallace, grand organist.

Over 100 delegates were present on the opening of the grand lodge. The lodge will be in session several days.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Wallis Nash of Corvallis is in the city.

Rev. J. P. Egbert, of San Jose, a prominent and able Presbyterian minister, is in the city.

Mr. D. Sellin, a young gentleman connected with the California Associated Press, arrived on the last steamer. He will leave this morning for a flying trip to Walla Walla and Eastern Oregon.

Messrs. W. B. Hoyt and C. C. Leavitt, appraisers in the custom house, San Francisco, are in the city, as witnesses in the case of the United States vs. several Chinese firms concerning duty on sago.

Mr. John Payne, who has resided in Polk county for ten years past, has sold out all his property there and intends returning to Georgetown, Kentucky, where he has fallen heir to an estate worth $15,000. He will start in about a week.

REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES.

Last evening between the hours of 4 and 7 o'clock the republican primaries were held in the several wards of the city. The following delegates were chosen to attend the city convention, which will be held at the court house on Thursday, June 16th:

First Ward—John D. Biles, W. M. Simpson, L. B. Stearns, W. A. Hart, C. C. Phillips, J. M. Bower, P. H. Shulderman, Thomas Dick.

Second Ward—Henry Ackerman, S. E. Allen, B. M. Dement, D. E. Buchanan, C. A. Dolph, H. Surner, W. H. Harris, Capt. J. A. Brown.

Third Ward—L. A. Marrum, S. E. Mires, H. M. Hathaway, W. J. Algeo, R. L. Durham, S. B. Irwin, C. P. Bogue, J. J. Allard, H. S. Allen, D. C. Keiler.

ELEGANT ICE CREAM PARLORS.

The Turn Halle Candy store, corner Fourth and Yamhill, has become so popular that for the past week they have not been able to supply the demand of their numerous patrons for ice cream. Yesterday arrangements were effected by which an ample supply from Alisky & Hegele's will be secured every evening until 12 o'clock. The parlors are very neatly furnished and have become a favorite resort. Not only ice cream, but fine confectionery, soda, sarsaparilla and Wilhoit waters, are served in good style.

MARBLEIZED SLATE MANTELS.

Mr. A. Goodnough, contractor and builder, corner Second and C streets, has on exhibition some of the finest looking mantels ever brought to this city. During his late visit to Vermont, he made the discovery that the marbleized slate of Vermont was more durable than any manufactured mantel known, and being charmed with the goods, he bought a stock and made arrangements for supplies. They are manufactured in New York City, and are marbleized by a peculiar process and polished to the perfection of the finest marble. These mantels are in endless variety of beautiful designs. Mr. Geo. James, Dr. Frazer, J. Brandt, Jr. and others who are building, have ordered several. Their sale promises to be general.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Owing to the breakage of machinery in the steamer Fleetwood we are compelled to discontinue our regular trips to the Cascades until about the 20th inst. At the present time high water interferes with our making the middle landing, but we have built a wharf boat of ample size to serve so that future freshets will cause neither trouble nor delay. We are having two propellers made, so that should misfortune again overtake us no delay will be occasioned. We will be in readiness to resume about the 20th inst., at which time we will make such a point as to leave only two and a half miles portage, and trips will be regular and certain. The public can rest assured there will be no further delay than is actually necessary to make repairs.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION NEWS.

Line into East Portland located—The Snake river bridge—the big blast, etc.

The line of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company from this city to the Columbia river was permanently located Saturday. It will start from the O. & C. railroad track, a few hundred feet above the east side depot and follow Sullivan's gulch [illegible] about two miles, thence nearly east for three miles to the south end of Rocky butte, thence around the south end of the butte, thence northerly about a mile, thence east to Sandy river, nine miles, thence east to the Columbia river, two and a half miles. The O. & C. track will be used to reach a point opposite the new depot. A large gang of men have started at work clearing timber along the line.

After considering proposals for the stone work for Snake river bridge at Grange City, the company has concluded not to let the work by contract but execute it themselves. The bridge will be 1760 feet long, and have ten spans, seven of 175 feet, two of 140 feet, and a draw of 300 feet. There will be a clear space of [illegible] feet for boats at the draw. The piers will be constructed of or be filled with stone, as in the [illegible] exactly based this summer. The superstructure will be all [illegible], iron, except the draw, which will [illegible]. The bridge will be [illegible] this year, and will cost [illegible] to $500,000.

The big blast at Shell rock, [illegible] miles above the Cascades, by which [illegible] of solid rock will be shattered, takes place this afternoon. A number of gentlemen interested in engineering, will visit the scene to witness the explosion, and return to-night by special boat.

[illegible] the [illegible] works, the site for freight and passenger [illegible] machine shops, will be [illegible]. Mr. [illegible] river home.

PORTLAND COLORED IMMIGRATION SOCIETY.

PORTLAND, June 13, 1881.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In the Standard [illegible] of yesterday and the [illegible] of to-day appears an article signed by Burton Crawford and John P. Brown, charging that the Portland Immigration Society "misrepresents the colored people of the city." The only reply we [illegible] is [illegible] to prepare for assisting such colored emigrants as may possibly [illegible] among us. [illegible] for the great exodus from the southern states deserves to the large and respectable white audiences which have ever attended our entertainments in the past and the respectability of the great mass of our members.

As we have done before we are doing now and will on Wednesday 15th, give our annual picnic at the Gambrinus gardens and hope those who have so generously patronized our entertainments in the past will continue to aid us in the present and treat such slurs thrown with the contempt they deserve.

CITY.

[illegible] About [illegible] o'clock yesterday morning the mate of the German ship Argo was returning to the vessel and stopped for a moment near a gate leading into the lot back of [illegible] Officer J. W. Sloan saw him, and as an attempt had been made a few days before to [illegible] the officer [illegible] suspicious. He called to the sailor to halt until he could examine [illegible], but the seaman, not understanding English and supposing Sloan to be a highwayman, started on a run from Salmon street towards his ship. This convinced the policeman that the mate was not engaged in lawful business, and he pursued. The [illegible] now convinced that an attempt was being made [illegible] him, increased his speed, Sloan following and crying "Halt." The man didn't halt, so Sloan fired his revolver in the air. By this time the man had [illegible] stumbled and cut his nose, which bled profusely. The sailors, hearing the report, [illegible] half dressed, and seeing their [illegible] bleeding supposed he had been shot [illegible] afterwards, when the sailors [illegible] him, giving him a severe thumping. He finally got away, and with the assistance of Officers [illegible] and Watson arrested the whole crew and [illegible] them to police headquarters. After [illegible] explanation [illegible] the night [illegible] the sailors were allowed to go to their place [illegible] when a man travels in the [illegible] States he wants to be able to understand English.

[illegible] The [illegible] arrived [illegible] the barkentine Tam O'Shanter, which [illegible] at Allen & Lewis dock. To-day [illegible] transferred to a barge lying alongside [illegible] started to The Dalles. These are the [illegible] placed on a route west of the Sierra Nevada mountains. Mr. Pullman [illegible] the O. R. & N. Co. [illegible] the finest cars the company [illegible]. They have [illegible] drawing room, and are [illegible] upper berths are inlaid with [illegible]. The interior, as a whole, does not present [illegible] appearance as the cars [illegible] in walnut [illegible] gold, but are [illegible] more cheerful. [illegible] this afternoon the cars will be ready [illegible] inspection. Mr. H. F. Shields, of Chicago, who arrived here recently, will have charge of the [illegible] business, with headquarters for the present at The Dalles. Two more sleepers, the "[illegible]" and "Walla Walla," will arrive in a few days.

AT THE STATE FAIR.—There are now at the State Fair grounds and soon to be en route there the following horses to compete for the prizes offered by the society: Katie R., Tilly W., and Joe Hooker, owned by Capt. Flavel; Winters, from Prineville, Lish Barnes, owner; Trade Dollar, from Walla Walla, Isaac, owner; Tillie C. and Jack Savage, owned in San Francisco, brought up by Ab Stemler, trainer; Frank Hastings, Olo, Mandy Murray, Lindsay and Mrs. Garfield, owned by [illegible] Taylor; Heenan, owned by Chauncy Dale. These horses will soon be in training on the ground.

OREGON STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY.—This society which convenes to-day in this city, will hold an evening session in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., to which the public is invited. The annual address by the president, Dr. Baily of Hillsboro, will be given, and other prominent speakers will participate in the exercises. A number of musical selections will be rendered during the evening, including a vocal solo by Mrs. Goodsell.

AT REST.—The remains of the late Herbert N. Northrup arrived by the steamer Sunday night and yesterday afternoon were placed under the sod in Lone Fir cemetery. The funeral ceremonies at the residence of Mr. E. J. Northrup, were conducted by Rev. T. H. [illegible] and Rev. George W. Izer, and were largely attended. The interment was private, only the family attending. The floral tributes were very numerous and rich.

BURGLARIZED.—The residence of C. M. Reid, in Tibbetts' addition, East Portland, was entered by a burglar during the absence of the family. The thief took a silver dollar and a 10 cent piece from a purse, but for some unaccountable reason failed to take a $10 gold piece which was also in the purse. So far as known no other articles of value were purloined.

LEG BROKEN.—Sunday evening Joseph Knott, son of [illegible] Knott, was riding near the L street ferry landing, when his horse slipped and fell in such a manner as to catch the young man's left leg. Both bones were fractured about four inches above the ankle. The injuries were dressed by Dr. Kadety.

[illegible] WATER.—During the past 24 hours, the Columbia river has risen very little. Last evening the [illegible] went down, and the weather and water report could not be obtained. The Willamette had risen about 6 inches during the 24 hours preceding 8 o'clock last evening.

Y. P. A.—Regular meeting of the Young People's association this evening at 7½ o'clock in the Baptist church vestry. Mr. A. H. Tanner will lead the meeting. Every member of the society is requested to be present. Also strangers are invited and made welcome.

[illegible] SYNOD.—An arrangement has been made that persons traveling over the O. & C. R. R. (east and west side divisions) to attend the session of the synod in McMinnville, and paying full fare one way, will be returned free on certificate of the stated clerk of the synod.

POMONA GRANGE.—The Marion county Pomona grange will meet in the grange hall in this city, at 11 o'clock A. M. on Thursday, the 23d inst., instead of the 9th, the day for the regular meeting. Attendance of members desired and all fourth degree members cordially invited.

JOURNALISTIC CHANGES.—Messrs. H. M. Clinton and W. A. McPherson, both experienced and able men, have taken charge of the local department of the Evening Telegram. Mr. Jerry Caldwell to-day assumes the local editorship of the Standard.

FUNERAL.—The funeral of the late Wm. H. Conley, who died in Santa Clara, California, on the 1st of June, will take place to-day at 2 o'clock, from the residence of the family on the corner of M and Fifth streets, East Portland.

WILL PARTICIPATE.—Grand Marshal Al Zieber has been notified by the members of the Grand Army of the Republic that they will take part in the parade on the 4th. They will be assigned position in the procession.

QUARTERLY MEETING.—The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, in the vestry of the church.

SERIOUSLY ILL.—Capt. John Smith, Indian agent of the Warm Spring reservation, is at present lying [illegible] at the residence of his son-in-law, Dr. C. H. Raffety, in East Portland.

IN JAIL.—A. T. Nicholls, who was arrested last Saturday, charged with attempting to defraud his creditors, is still in jail. The case will probably be examined in a few days.

MEETING.—The guild of St. Stephen's chapel will meet this (Tuesday) afternoon at three o'clock, in the room adjoining the chapel. A full attendance is desired.

P. C. AND F. B. CLUB.—The usual monthly meeting of the Portland Cricket and Foot Ball Club, will be held this evening in the St. Andrew's Society rooms.

LOREN B. HASTINGS.

PORTLAND, June 13, 1881.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your Port Townsend telegrams of the 11th inst. is an announcement of the death of Loren B. Hastings, a prominent resident of that vicinity since [illegible]. Mr. H. was formerly a resident of this city. In the spring of 1850 in company with Dr. F. S. Baker, now of Walla Walla, he opened the Portland House on the southwest corner of First and Salmon streets, afterward occupied for a time as the [illegible] office and burned August 2, 1853. In 1851 he was a member of the first city council of Portland and was much respected by all who knew him during his residence here.

SEEKING SINNERS.

Inauguration of a Series of Revival Meetings under the Leadership of Mr. Hollenbeck, the Evangelist.

Last night at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, and under the auspices of the members thereof, a series of meetings similar to those held throughout the country by Moody and Sankey, was commenced. A large crowd of people were present, and from a numerical standpoint, the meeting can be said to have been auspiciously inaugurated. Mr. M. [illegible] Hollenbeck, a young man who about five years ago was converted during one of Moody and Sankey's revivals at Chicago, who arrived in this city from San Francisco [illegible] was present and assumed the leadership of the services. The gentleman is a young man of prepossessing appearance, and one who would hardly be taken for an evangelist. The meeting was [illegible] by the singing of a number of [illegible] by the congregation, after which [illegible] prayer was given by Rev. [illegible] of the First Presbyterian church of this city. Mr. Hollenbeck then gave a [illegible] of ante-bellum times, telling of [illegible] a slave girl who was being [illegible] and set at liberty by her kind hearted purchaser, who, a resident of the north, was traveling throughout the south. The story as told by the gentleman was a forcible illustration of the redemption of the world by the Saviour, and [illegible] after which the [illegible] at the request of the speaker, [illegible] the hymn commencing:

> "I will sing of my Redeemer
> And his wondrous love to me."

Following the conclusion of the hymn, Mr. Hollenbeck read the 103d psalm, and afterward applied himself to his task in a fervent manner, his subject being intemperance. But while he spoke [illegible] a subject that has been worn threadbare, his manner of dealing with it was entirely new, and withal a pleasant one. [illegible] of the crime of intemperance being shown in a [illegible] vivid manner, illustrated by actual occurrences, told by Mr. Hollenbeck in a manner that brought the matter home more forcibly [illegible] display of [illegible]. Mr. Holl[enbeck] is a pleasant as well as an effective speaker, and no one who listens to him but will think that in entering upon his great mission he has done so earnestly and honestly. After the close of the remarks of the gentleman, a season of silent prayer was indulged in, after which Rev. E. A. Gray, of the Baptist church, pronounced the benediction. [illegible] the series of meetings will be held [illegible] Taylor street M. E. church. Mr. Hollenbeck will speak upon the subject of "[illegible]" [illegible] A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend.

Yesterday forenoon the grand lodge of Masons for Oregon commenced its regular session at Masonic temple. The following is the list of officers, nearly all of whom were present:

R. P. Earhart, grand master.
W. T. Wright, deputy grand master.
Thomas G. Reames, grand senior warden.
J. N. Dolph, grand junior warden.
H. Abrahams, grand treasurer.
I. W. Pratt, grand secretary.
J. R. N. Bell, grand chaplain.
M. C. George, grand orator.
Wallace Baldwin, acting grand senior deacon.
D. P. Mason, grand junior deacon.
H. E. Harris, acting grand standard-bearer.
H. V. V. Johnson, acting grand sword-bearer.
J. B. Lee, grand marshal.
Willis Dunnigan, acting grand steward.
A. J. Woodworth, grand tyler.
L. W. Wallace, grand organist.

Over 100 delegates were present on the opening of the grand lodge. The lodge will be in session several days.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Wallis Nash of Corvallis is in the city.

Rev. J. P. Egbert, of San Jose, a prominent and able Presbyterian minister, is in the city.

Mr. D. Selig, a young gentleman connected with the California Associated Press, arrived on the last steamer. He will leave this morning for a flying trip to Walla Walla and Eastern Oregon.

Messrs. W. B. Hoyt and C. C. Leavitt, appraisers in the custom house, San Francisco, are in the city, as witnesses in the case of the United States vs. several Chinese firms concerning duty on sago.

Mr. John Payne, who has resided in Polk county for ten years past, has sold out all his property there and intends returning to Georgetown, Kentucky, where he has fallen heir to an estate worth $15,000. He will start in about a week.

REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES.

Last evening between the hours of 4 and 7 o'clock the republican primaries were held in the several wards of the city. The following delegates were chosen to attend the city convention, which will be held at the court house on Thursday, June 16th:

First Ward—[illegible] W. M. Simpson, S. B. Stearns, W. A. Hart, C. C. Phillips, [illegible] H. [illegible], Thomas Dies.

ELEGANT ICE CREAM PARLORS.

The Turn Halle Candy store, corner Fourth and Yamhill, has become so popular that for the past week they have not been able to supply the demand of their numerous patrons for ice cream. Yesterday arrangements were effected by which an ample supply from Alisky & Hegele's will be secured every evening until 12 o'clock. The parlors are very neatly furnished and have become a favorite resort. Not only ice cream, but fine confectionery, soda, sarsaparilla and Wilhoit waters, are served in good style.

MARBLEIZED SLATE MANTELS.

Mr. A. Goodnough, contractor and builder, corner Second and C streets, has on exhibition some of the finest looking mantels ever brought to this city. During his late visit to Vermont, he made the discovery that the marbleized slate of Vermont was more durable than any manufactured mantel known, and being charmed with the goods, he bought a stock and made arrangements for supplies. They are manufactured in New York City, and are marbleized by a peculiar process and polished to the perfection of the finest marble. These mantels are in endless variety of beautiful designs. Mr. Geo. James, Dr. Frazer, J. Brandt, Jr., and others who are building, have ordered several. Their sale promises to be general.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Owing to the breakage of machinery in the steamer Fleetwood we are compelled to discontinue our regular trips to the Cascades until about the 20th inst. At the present time high water interferes with our making the middle landing, but we have built a wharf boat of ample size to serve us so that future freshets will cause neither trouble nor delay. We are having two propellers made, so that should misfortune again overtake us no delay will be occasioned. We will be in readiness to resume about the 20th inst., at which time we will make such a point as to leave only two and a half mile portage, and trips will be regular and certain. The public can rest assured there will be no further delay than is actually necessary to make repairs.

WHO LOST WATERLOO?

[illegible] the harsh expressions of Charras [illegible] about the utter state of [illegible] the emperor it was as to the strategy [illegible] that he did not take at all [illegible] possibility of the march of the [illegible] Prussian army from Wavre to [illegible] Waterloo and so on, are [illegible] They are [illegible] That Napoleon [illegible] Prussians, whether they were [illegible] were going to unite with the English or [illegible] Grouchy, and having [illegible] force and plenty of cavalry [illegible] as to the junction of the army with the English had [illegible] all that [illegible] came. But [illegible] Napoleon [illegible] measures to prevent it. [illegible] surprise when the [illegible] astrophe. His principal [illegible] his choice of the other [illegible] crossed the Dyle. As to his knowledge of the [illegible] of that part of the [illegible] questioned.

So with Napoleon. His throwing the entire responsibility of taking care of the Prussians on Marshal Grouchy was his chief fault, for Grouchy was not able to sustain such a burden. Davoust—whom he might have had, and sought to have had, in Grouchy's place—would have successfully carried out his ideas. And while I fully admit the emperor's dilatoriness on the morning of the 17th, by which the concentration of the Prussian army at Wavre was assured, which, in fact, made it impossible for Grouchy, or for Davoust even, to prevent this concentration; and while I also fully admit the negligence of the emperor in leaving Grouchy so long without instructions except the warning of the possibly intended junction of the allied armies contained in the Bertrand letter, yet I cannot agree with those who, like Chesney, say that "the notion that Grouchy is responsible for the Waterloo defeat must be dismissed by those who choose to weigh the evidence from the domain of authentic history to the limbo of national figments." The responsibility must be divided between the emperor and his lieutenant. Charging upon Napoleon, as we must, the faults above specified, it must yet not be forgotten that had Grouchy intelligently carried out the emperor's instructions contained in the Bertrand letter, he might have been in a position to defeat or at least to hinder the junction of the allied armies.

It is hardly to be questioned that if Grouchy had moved at 4 o'clock in the morning by way of Mousty, and had put himself in communication with the main army, his forces would have stopped the Prussian advance, and allowed the emperor the use of his whole army against the Duke's forces, which were inferior in numbers and composition. Instead of being obliged to detach 16,000 infantry against the Prussians, Napoleon could have used them against the English; and from what we know of the condition of Wellington's army in the latter part of the afternoon the result would have been a decided victory for Napoleon. If, on the other hand, Grouchy had, even as late as mid-day, changed his plan, and, following the advice of Gérard, had marched to join the emperor, he would certainly have averted the catastrophe, even if he had not arrived in time to insure a victory for his side.

"Hell" and "Devil" in the Revised Testament.

A writer in the New York Times, evidently a theological scholar, reviewing the changes made by the revisers of the new version of the New Testament, says:

[illegible] one word which is not to be found anywhere in the old version, which has been transferred bodily from the Greek to the revised edition. This is the word "Hades," which was used in Greek mythology to denote the world of departed spirits. This word in the authorized version was translated "hell," and the fact that the scholars having this [illegible] has given rise to the [illegible] "hell" of the Bible is to be [illegible]. The [illegible] Whenever [illegible] the word "Hades" [illegible] The [illegible] Hades [illegible] is evidently here [illegible] The text simply [illegible] of Jesus after His death, affirming that He will not be allowed to remain in Hades, the region of departed spirits. In the 31st verse of the same chapter of Acts, "His soul was not left in hell" is changed to "His soul was not left in Hades," and wherever the word "Hades" occurs in the original it is retained in the revised version. The "hell" of the gospel, the place of eternal punishment, is retained, but the word used to describe it in the Greek is "Gehenna," and not "Hades."

The word "devil," which appears in the authorized version very frequently, is eliminated in the revised in many places. Two very different Greek words were each translated "devil" by the men who made the King James version. One of these clearly meant the prince of darkness. This was the word used in Matthew iv. 1: "Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil." Then there is the other word, the literal translation of which is "demon," which is so often used in connection with those miserable persons who are described literally as "demonized," or, in the free translation of the authorized version, as "possessed of the devils." The rendering of the two distinct words by the same term obliterates to the English reader a very clear distinction, which is made in the original. The men "possessed of devils," or "demonized," were not regarded, even by the Jews of the days of Jesus, as influenced by the prince of darkness. They were the victims of a disease, some of them being epileptic, others insane and others still deaf and dumb. The revisers have not deemed it advisable to substitute the word "demon" for "devil" when the latter occurs in this connection, but, while retaining the old translation, they have indicated on the margin every instance in which the word "demon" has been translated "devil." The devil, therefore, has not been abolished in the revision of the New Testament. He occupies a position with the hell of the old version. He has simply been confined to his proper sphere.

Let us talk about the Weather.

[Detroit Free Press.

More than a year ago those who travel by the Woodward-avenue car line entered into a solemn agreement not to mention the weather to each other when they met on the car. No matter how hot or cold it was no one was to speak of it, and each one was to infer that all the others had brains enough to expect 10 degrees below in January and 85 above in August. As a result of this agreement a thousand was abolished and thousands of citizens put in a way to enjoy themselves as well as one can in a street car. Two weeks ago the organization was revived, and scores of new names added to the list, and up to yesterday noon the word "weather" had not been even hinted at on any car on that line. At that hour a stranger entered a car at Adelaide street and had hardly taken a seat when he said to a man across the aisle:

"Nice little shower we've had!"

He was given a freezing look in reply, but he continued:

"Curious that we don't have more thunder storms this spring."

One of the organization here presented him with an engraving of a coffin, but after a brief glance he continued:

"Wonder if we are going to have a very dry summer?"

One more effort was made to save him, but he recklessly observed:

"I'm buying a place up here and shall use this line four times per day. Did any of you gentlemen notice how the thermometer stood?"

The car was stopped, and he was taken off and impaled on the tops of some iron pickets, no one even troubling themselves to take down his dying words to his wife. The coroner has refused to hold any inquest, and the chief of police says he shall take no official notice of the [illegible]

Maine and New York.

New York [illegible] The machine organs absurdly assume that there is some way a contest is in progress between Mr. Conkling and Mr. Blaine, are continually crying out that Mr. Conkling carried his state in the presidential election and Mr. Blaine lost his. Even if the facts were as they allege, they have no particle of pertinence to the existing status. But the organs do not tell the truth. On the same day [illegible] New York gave Garfield a plurality of 21,[illegible]

[illegible] Maine [illegible] the [illegible] Maine's plurality [illegible] New York.

WHO LOST WATERLOO?

[From the June Atlantic.]

[illegible] upon the utter state of [illegible] to the strategy of [illegible] He did not take at all into [illegible] the possibility of the march of [illegible] Prussian army from Wavre to join Wellington, and so on, are true. They are [illegible] That Napoleon, having entertained the whole fury of [illegible] the Prussians [illegible] whether they were going to unite with the English or [illegible] and having [illegible] force and plenty of cavalry and [illegible] warning as to the danger of the union of that army with the English, had considered that he had done all that was needful, and [illegible] he was taken by surprise [illegible] But they [illegible] Napoleon was [illegible] the movements of the allied armies and took no measures to prevent [illegible] a captain [illegible] to whom he gives a sufficient number of men, and whom he warns to beware of the dangers arising from the force of certain currents and then goes below; he is undoubtedly taken by surprise when the ship runs ashore. In his being asleep, he certainly did not see the catastrophe. His principal, if not his only, fault was in his choice of the officer to whom he entrusted the deck. As to his knowledge of the perils of that part of the voyage, that cannot be questioned.

So with Napoleon. His throwing the entire responsibility of taking care of the Prussians on Marshal Grouchy was his chief fault, for Grouchy was not able to sustain such a burden. Davoust, whom he might have had, and ought to have had, in Grouchy's place, would have successfully carried out his ideas. And while I fully admit the emperor's dilatoriness on the morning of the 17th, by which the concentration of the Prussian army at Wavre was assured, which, in fact, made it impossible for Grouchy, or for Davoust even, to prevent this concentration; and while I also fully admit the negligence of the emperor in leaving Grouchy so long without instructions, except the warning of the possibly intended junction of the allied armies contained in the Bertrand letter, yet I cannot agree with those who, like Chesney, say that "the notion that Grouchy is responsible for the Waterloo defeat must be dismissed by those who choose to weigh the evidence from the domain of authentic history to the limbo of national figments." The responsibility must be divided between the emperor and his lieutenant. Charging upon Napoleon, as we must, the faults above specified, it must yet not be forgotten that had Grouchy intelligently carried out the emperor's instructions contained in the Bertrand letter he might have been in a position to defeat, or at least to hinder, the junction of the allied armies.

It is hardly to be questioned that if Grouchy had moved at 4 o'clock in the morning by way of Mousty, and had put himself in communication with the main army, his forces would have stopped the Prussian advance, and allowed the emperor the use of his whole army against the Duke's forces, which were inferior in numbers and composition. Instead of being obliged to detach 16,000 infantry against the Prussians, Napoleon could have used them against the English, and from what we know of the condition of Wellington's army in the latter part of the afternoon the result would have been a decided victory for Napoleon. If, on the other hand, Grouchy had, even as late as mid-day, changed his plan, and, following the advice of Gérard, had marched to join the emperor, he would certainly have averted the catastrophe, even if he had arrived too late to insure a victory for his side.

"Hell" and "Devil" in the Revised Testament.

A writer in the New York Times, evidently a theological scholar, reviewing the changes made by the translators of the new version of the New Testament, says:

"Hades" is one word which is not to be found anywhere in the old version, which has been transferred bodily from the Greek to the revised edition. This is the word "Hades" which was used in Greek mythology to denote the world of departed spirits. This word in the authorized version was translated "hell," and the fact that the scholars having the revision in charge have refused to sanction this translation has given rise to the report that the "hell" of the Bible was to be abolished. The report has no foundation in fact. Wherever the word "hell" [illegible] appears in the original it has been properly translated "hell." The "Hell" of the original has a quite different signification, and by translating it "hell" the proper meaning of the word was obscured. An instance of the use of "Hell" in the new version is that [illegible] where those words are quoted from Psalms [illegible] "That wilt not leave My soul in Hades, neither wilt Thou give Thy holy one to see corruption." The common rendering "hell" is evidently here wholly unsuitable. The text simply predicts the resurrection of Jesus after His death, affirming that He will not be allowed to remain in Hades, the region of departed spirits. In the 31st verse of the same chapter of Acts, "His soul was not left in hell" is changed to "His soul was not left in Hades," and wherever the word "Hades" occurs in the original it is retained in the revised version. The "hell" of the gospel, the place of eternal punishment, is retained, but the word used to describe it in the Greek is "Gehenna," and not "Hades."

The word "devil," which appears in the authorized version very frequently, is eliminated in the revised in many places. Two very different Greek words were each translated "devil" by the men who made the King James version. One of these clearly meant the prince of darkness. This was the word used in Matthew iv. 1: "Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil." Then there is the other word, the literal translation of which is "demon," which is so often used in connection with those miserable persons who are described, literally as "demonized," or, in the free translation of the authorized version, as "possessed of the devils." The rendering of the two distinct words by the same term obliterates to the English reader a very clear distinction which is made in the original. The men "possessed of devils," or "demonized," were not regarded, even by the Jews of the days of Jesus, as influenced by the prince of darkness. They were the victims of a disease, some of them being epileptic, others insane and others still deaf and dumb. The revisers have not deemed it advisable to substitute the word "demon" for "devil," when the latter occurs in this connection, but while retaining the old translation, they have indicated on the margin every instance in which the word "demon" has been translated "devil." The devil, therefore, has not been abolished in the revision of the New Testament. He occupies a position with the bulk of the old version. He has simply been confined to his proper sphere.

Let us talk about the Weather.

[Detroit Free Press.]

More than a year ago those who travel by the Woodward-avenue car line entered into a solemn agreement not to mention the weather to each other when they met on the car. No matter how hot or cold it was no one was to speak of it, and each one was to infer that all the others had brains enough to expect 10 degrees below in January and 85 above in August. As a result of this agreement a nuisance was abolished and thousands of citizens put in a way to enjoy themselves as well as one can in a street car. Two weeks ago the organization was revived, and scores of new names added to the list, and up to yesterday noon the word "weather" had not been even hinted at on any car on that line. At that hour a stranger entered a car at Adelaide street, and had hardly taken a seat when he said to a man across the aisle:

"Nice little shower we've had?"

He was given a freezing look in reply, but he continued:

"Curious that we don't have more thunder storms this spring."

One of the organization here presented him with an engraving of a coffin, but after a brief glance he continued:

"Wonder if we are going to have a very dry summer?"

One more effort was made to save him, but he recklessly observed:

"I'm buying a place up here and shall use this line four times per day. Did any of you gentlemen notice how the thermometer stood?"

The car was stopped and he was taken off and impaled on the tops of some iron pickets, no one even troubling themselves to take down his dying words to his wife. The coroner has refused to hold any inquest and the chief of police says he shall take no official notice of the incident. "That's the sort of men they [illegible] Woodward avenue, and that's the [illegible] conversing [illegible] If [illegible] has got to be put a stop to. [illegible] becomes a [illegible] It means nothing, annoys everybody and is deserving of sudden death. [illegible] the work of extermination go on.

Maine and New York.

New York Tribune: The machine organs, absurdly assuming that in some way a contest is in progress between Mr. Conkling and Mr. Blaine, are continually crying out that Mr. Conkling carried his state in the presidential election and Mr. Blaine lost his. Even if the facts were as they allege, they have no particular pertinence to the existing status. But the organs do not tell the truth. On the same day that New York gave Garfield a plurality of 22,-000 Maine gave him a plurality of [illegible] In proportion to the total number of votes Maine's plurality for the republican candidate was four times as large as that given by New York.
